BSPH/MPH Program

Academically strong undergraduate students at the University of Texas at Austin who are pursuing the BS in Public Health have the option of earning a MPH from the School of Public Health at the UT Health Sciences Center at Houston.

The BSPH/MPH Program allows students to earn both degrees in approximately five years. During their senior year, students complete the first year of the MPH degree at the Austin Regional Campus. The second year of the MPH can be completed in Austin or at one of the other campuses of the UT School of Public Health, depending on the student’s area of interest.

To apply in Spring 2018, students must meet the following requirements:

- Minimum 3.4 UT GPA
- 18 or fewer hours remaining in Fall 2018 and Spring 2019 to graduate with the BS in PBH in Spring 2019
- Ability to successfully complete 2 – 3 graduate courses per semester in Fall 2018 and Spring 2019

Previous graduates in this “4+1” program were able to articulate their passion for Public Health, had successfully completed an average of at least 15 hours per semester and had demonstrated time management skills.

For more information about the “traditional” graduate program, visit: https://sph.uth.edu/academics/degree-programs/master-of-public-health-mph/